Sasha Shantel Biography

I am a Writer, Career Advisor, Mentor, Model, Presenter and Entrepreneur based in SE London. I first started modelling in 2007 when I entered 'Face of Touch' Magazine This was an amazing experience and made my love of modelling grow. After finishing as the runner-up, I joined up with Touch Magazine's then- Fashion Stylist Denise Browne who said she liked my look. From there I featured as the face of her clothing brand "Don't Judge Me World" and featured in a number of publications including Pride Magazine, Touch Magazine, Young Voices, New Nation and the Voice. I then continued my success by entering the Mahogany -Top Model of Colour Competition in 2007. Overall, I placed 5th, however, this was an accomplishment because I was the only model who was in the top 5 out of the 24 contestants who was less than 5ft 9. After this, I went onto to win the 2nd annual Miss Flavour 2008 beauty contest created by Flavour Magazine. It was through Flavour that my passion for writing was re-ignited and I was able to interview a number of celebrities for the publication. Winning Miss Flavour was also a great opportunity, as I was the first non-celebrity to grace the cover!!!

Before I got into modelling, I dreamed of acting and writing. At aged 17 I wrote for my local magazine as their gossip and features editor, a role that I kept for seven years. From working on the magazine, I enrolled at college and studied for a BTEC National in Performing Arts which included Acting, Singing and Dancing, which I enjoyed thoroughly. I also got the opportunity to act in theatres including The Albany, Oval House, Hampstead Theatre and The Cockpit. I absolutely loved it, but found that my passion for writing grew as did my entrepreneurial streak!

In 2009- I began studying for a Diploma in Fitness and Image consultancy as I have always loved keeping fit. I took a short break but now I have resumed my training and I aim to become qualified and launch my own and it was at this time that I re-visited my passion for self development books. My mother had always encouraged me to read them and it is because of these books that I soon developed the urge to spread my own brand of positivity and help others to feel inspired. It started off with my personal blogspot-- www.sashashantelonline.blogspot.com which soon became an outlet for positive and hardworking people who are inspirational and work hard. It was a space to interview up and coming talent as well as seasoned professionals who are on top of their career game. I noticed that people were reading it and liked the fact that my blog was not all about me. This brought on the creation of my very own online magazine- In-spirels Magazine.

Along with my mother- who is a qualified life-coach we created www.in-spirelsmagazine.co.uk a magazine completely dedicated to positivity and the improvement of the self. It includes articles on self development, nutritional advice, positive and life changing articles and Q&A sessions with some of the hottest and most talented up and coming talent! So far we have interviewed some amazing individuals and with every edition- it grows stronger and stronger. Now we are PR represented by Pink 'N' Black Entertainment - I now have plans for world domination. Most magazines are driven by scandal- which is okay for them because, after all there is money to made! However, I am driven by a passion for positivity and the only message I want to spread is one which highlights the hard work and efforts of others. I truly believe that if you support others without expecting it back, the rewards eventually will come thick and fast.

Writing has opened up many doors for me. I currently hold the role of EDITOR for men's lifestyle magazine- www.inboxmagazine.co.uk and I love being a part of the team. People are recognizing that I am a woman of many talents and I plan to make 2011 my year.

I have plans to do more photo shoots, presenting, writing and to take In-spirels international- so watch this space.
